

From: Kresmoi
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/10/01 12:32am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

At any level, it seems ludicrous to 'punish' Microsoft by handing over one billion dollars worth of the market for PC's in education. Microsoft was found guilty of abusing monopolistic power, and the result is the expansion of that power? Since Microsoft seems so willing to donate products 'worth' a billion dollars to these poor schools, why not have Microsoft just give them a billion dollars hard cash to use on computers any way they like?

Thank you for your time,

Kevin McCloskey